

BLISS

MAGAZINE 12.08

OBAMA

ALEX GREY X OBAMA

Last month's cover artist, Alex Grey sent us over this painting of Barack Obama that he did the day after it was announced that Obama would in fact, become the first black President of the United States. Besides being one of the coolest portraits we've ever seen, it is a picture that signals a change in history as we see, live and breathe it.

President Elect, Barack Hussein Obama is pure inspiration. Never before in the history of our nation has a president motivated such a large and diverse group of young people to get out there and become involved with the way our country is running. His axiom of change has lit a flame of revolution in the hearts and minds of all Americans. Alex Grey has captured that motivation so perfectly here on this page that we almost ran it without any text at all.

